This directory is one of a series compiled annually by the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. It includes over 600 communities, 258 of which are part of metropolitan or regional organizations. Virtually all of them are affiliated with the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds as their national association for sharing of common services, interchange of experience and joint consultation and action. This number compares with 305 communities in the 1943 Directory, and reflects the development of Jewish communal organization in America.

These communities comprise at least 95 per cent of the Jewish population of the United States and about 90 per cent of the Jewish population of Canada. Listed for each community is the local central agency — federation, welfare fund or community council — with its address and the names of the president and executive director.

The names federation, welfare fund and Jewish community council are not definitive and their structures and functions vary from city to city. What is called a federation in one city, for example, may have the title of a community council in another. In the main these central agencies have responsibility for some or all of the following functions: (a) raising funds for local, national and overseas services; (b) allocation and distribution of funds for these purposes; (c) coordination and central planning of local services, such as family welfare, child care, health, recreation, community relations within the Jewish community and with the general community, Jewish education, care of the aged and vocational guidance, eliminating duplication and filling in gaps in service; (d) in small and some intermediate cities direct administration of local social services.

In the directory, the following symbols are used:

(1) Member agency of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds.

(2) Receives support from Community Chest.
